Bennett House,
SALEM OREGON

L. JAY S. TURNEY,

HAVING LEASED THE ABOVE NAMED HOTEL, is prepared to accommodate the traveling public and ONE HUNDRED REGULAR BOARDERS in as good style as any House on the Coast. He has determined to make the Bennett, as good as the best and better than any public house in Salem He will soon complete some important improvements, which will add greatly to its appearance and comfort, and intends to merit and hopes to receive his share of patronage.

He has secured the services of Charley (known to be the best cook in Salem and one of the best in the whole country) and other competent persons to manage the culinary department and is resolved to set as good a table as can be found anywhere—not in clap-trap pomp and show flummery and fine furniture, but in an abundant supply of the very best the market affords.

His Bar room will be kept warmed and lighted and well supplied with newspapers periodicals and other suitable reading matter, and kept in a manner which will make it an agreeable resort

In short he intends making an effort to please ALL who stop at the BENNETT HOUSE And he most respectfully requests his friends everywhere to give the old and well known stand at least one more trial before concluding they can do as well elsewhere and promises if they are not well treated and properly cared for and at reasonable figures it will not be the fault of the public's most obedient and most humble servant

Ventilation

Look at an asthmatic sitting before an open window regardless of the cold though it be Winter with his chest heaving laboriously and his countenance expressive of anguish What is the matter? Is he in pain? No What then is the distress? It is simply from want of fresh air The spasm in his lungs not only prevents the free admission of air from without but the free egress of that which is within so that the air which is in the lungs is a mixture of foul and good air When so many died in the famous Black Hole at Calcutta it was because the pure air was so shut out that they could not even get as much as the asthmatic does

Here we have palpable results and they startle us a d yet we may be suffering from day to day, in so small a way as to be imperceptible, the evil results of a deficiency of air, which may so accumulate as to impair the health, and even perhaps ultimately destroy life It is only a few that occasionally lose their lives suddenly from want of air, but a comparatively slight but continuous deficiency in its supply is constantly destroying the vast multitudes by a slow poisoning

A good supply of fresh air is an imperative necessity Such a supply it is easy to get when we are out of doors, but we do not get it when we are indoors unless we make special provision for it—or, in other words, unless we take measures to secure free ventilation A proper supply of pure air in our habitations and places of public meeting costs something, at least in cold weather That is the chief difficulty Economy is in the way Less fuel is required with defective than with proper ventilation A small room, closely shut up, is warmed at less expense than a large room with suitable inlets for fresh air and outlets for foul

The necessity for freeness in ventilation may be seen if we look at the amount of fresh air required for consumption Each person requires a gallon every minute, that is fourteen hundred and forty gallons in twenty four hours. It is easy to see that small and closely shut up apartments, and large gatherings of people in public buildings, as they are ordinarily constructed, are incompatible with any such supply as this

That you may see clearly what the necessity for ventilation is, observe what the lungs actually do with the air they receive.

Pure air is composed of three gases in certain proportions oxygen, nitrogen and carbonic acid gas the latter being in very small quantity These proportions are altered in the lungs, so that the air which is breathed out is different from that which is breathed in It has less of oxygen and more of carbonic acid It is less vivifying, by the loss of oxygen—that is thus negatively injured—and it has also acquired a positively bad character by the increase of the carbonic acid Much increase of this renders the air palpably poisonous If, therefore, there be great lack of ventilation as there often is in small rooms in dwellings or in crowded public assemblies, much injury is done to the health by the diminution of oxygen from the loss of oxygen and by the direct poisonous influence of the added carbonic acid And if the exposure to these deleterious influences be frequent there will inevitably be an accumulation of evil results, seen in a broken system, in positive disease, and at length in death

Observe what provision is made in nature for the constant purification of the air, and how this is often more or less defeated by the arrangements of man As oxygen is taken up in the lungs of all animals, and carbonic acid gas is sent forth from them, breathing is continually deteriorating the air But this is remedied by a counter operation Every leaf that you see is doing just the opposite of what the lungs do—it takes in carbonic acid and emits oxygen—so that there is an exchange going on between leaves and lungs In this way the due proportion of the ingredients of the air is everywhere maintained so that if the chemist examine air taken from various quarters of the earth he always finds precisely the same proportions, and the deterioration is increased by fires and lights, for they, like lungs, use up oxygen and return carbonic acid to the air

There is still another important provision for the purification of air The three ingredients of the air are not of the same specific gravity The carbonic acid gas is decidedly heavier than the oxygen and nitrogen, and therefore has a tendency to lie below them as water lies below oil Now if this tendency were not obviated in some way the carbonic acid, generated from lungs and fires and various decompositions, would accumulate all over the surface of the earth, pushing up the oxygen and nitrogen above it, as water does oil and would destroy life and put out fires every where But this tendency is obviated by another—the tendency of gases to mingle together It is just as the heavier water does not remain below the lighter alcohol poured upon it, but mixes with it Agitation promotes this mingling, and therefore in ventilation and communication of motion to the air is an important measure, and should be accomplished, so far as it can be done, without inconvenience

There are other deleterious gases besides carbonic acid produced in various ways, indoors and without, that are carried off by this same mingling and diluting process, but of these we will not speak the carbonic acid being the most important

What now is the inference from all this? Plainly that we ought to make it quite as sure that our lungs shall have a suitable supply of good air as that our stomach's shall have a suitable supply of good food Oxygen, indeed, is food as really as what is put into the stomach, for it enters into the composition of the blood and through this of the structures of the body And besides, the carbonic acid gas which is discharged from the lungs is so much refuse, and should not therefore, be introduced again, but should be carried off by the means which you see are provided so beautifully and carefully by the Creator —Harper's Weekly

ANTI REPUBLICAN TENDENCIES —We find the following in a late speech of Hon J J Steward, the unconditional Union candidate for Congress in Maryland 'It has been long known to all men who have enjoyed the privilege of conversation with Secretary Seward that he has no faith in the people or in republican government—that he is, in fact a monarchist When the electors of Maryland cast the last vote at Annapolis, they paid a visit to President Lincoln, after which they called upon Mr Seward He said 'Well, we have gone through the farce of another Presidential election' We were naturally surprised, and asked him what he meant by it, that I thought the election of Mr Lincoln was as fair an election as was ever held in the country ' He replied 'Yes, but then, you know, the best of us have not more virtue than will save us, and the mass cannot be expected to be better than the individuals composing it ' The original expression was a positive assertion, which showed the conclusion of his mind, that he regarded the election as 'a farce' ' There can be no doubt that Seward has exercised an insidious influence over the mind of the President whose intoxicating idea that a dictatorship might be his if he chose to take it, was probably one of Seward's treacherous suggestions. Such a supposition is supported by his audacious query to one of the crowds addressed during the late campaigning tour 'Will you have Andrew Johnson for President or king?'

The business of forwarding money through the mails which has been carried on by the Post Office Department since November 1, 1865, has at last become a paying business, the returns for the quarter ending September 30th showing that since its inauguration the business has paid $90 over the expenses The business promises to produce in future considerable revenue besides being a great convenience to the public Dr Ma D nald Superintendent of the Money Order Office who has recently returned from Europe says that the English money order system has never yet been made self supporting

AFFAIRS MATRIMONIAL —The newspapers in various parts of the country are noting an immense increase in marriages since the close of the war showing that nature is exerting her recuperative power to make up the ravages of the battle field and the hospital In Ohio the increase in 1865 and 1866 over 1859 and 1860 is 65 per cent Similar statistics compiled elsewhere show similar results

General Sheridan's report of the condition of the Freedmen in Louisiana, shows that in that State at least, the Freedmen s Bureau is still an indispensable institution As the General is neither a politician nor a 'lying Radical newspaper correspondent,' we presume his statements may be relied upon

"Love on the Brain

The sprightly 'Local' of the Atlanta (Ga) Era thus discourses on this subject We omit the exordium and peroration, and give only the body of the dissertation

Ordinarily the patient while laboring under this disease is unfit for business There is a sort of a will-o' the wisp figure dancing before his distorted vision coming between him and his daily labor, unfitting him for a sober computation of units and tens and making a Balaam of him generally. He suffers a loss of appetite—to the intense gratification of his landlady He looks upon bacon and greens with ultra contempt, and wants something more ethereal He thinks about the honey-dew of Hybla, and wishes some of the drug stores in town had a supply He studies Byron and Moore, and quotes from each with remarkable facility Lalla Rookh becomes a favorite, especially a certain portion of the fire worshippers

The disease is confined to no particular age or station We had an attack of it when about fifteen It was so severe that our mother wanted to give us paregoric. We told her the pain wasn't that low down We recovered in course of time Once it broke out fully in the shape of a certain question to a certain lady She answered in a monosyllable of two letters It brought us to our senses It swept the mist from our eyes like fog before a hurricane We hadn't expected anything of the kind, and was sure it had thundered We looked for the cloud and saw a large white bird sailing on a pond Thought we were much the same kind of a bird with our wings clipped A few days after we told our chum that we didn't see anything in that flaunting Dorothy Diddle to admire And we didn t

The disease develops most singularly in those who are advanced in years Any one who has seen an old man in love has seen Nature's harlequin The old dame gets up nothing more ludicrous or more inconsistent Every one feels like laughing at the poor old fellow's infirmities We once saw an old man who was suffering from an attack of it He was well enough advanced in life to have half a dozen grandchildren We knew him well, He was the playmate of our illustrious grandsire, who wasn't a quartermaster in the Revolutionary war If he had been, we would be better off than we are now We had noticed for sometime a singularity in his conduct, We saw him several times with roses stuck in his buttonhole We caught him once reading Burns Highland Mary We were out with him once looking at his stock, and we asked him which was his favorite heifer He said, 'Widow Wilkins'' The cat was out We knew what was the matter, but when, several months after, we saw him washing the dishes while the widow—that was—nursed the baby, we thought he was cured permanently.

THE CONTRADICTORY COUPLE — I do believe," he said, taking his spoon out of his glass and tossing it on the table "that of all the obstinate, positive, wrong headed creatures that ever were born, you are the most so Charlotte "

"Certainly certainly—have it your own way, pray You see how much I contradict you," rejoins the lady

Of course, you didn't contradict me at dinner, oh, no, not you,' says the gentleman

Yes, I did," says the lady

Oh you did," cries the gentleman, " you admit that!"

"If you call that contradiction, I do," the lady answers; ' and I say again, Edward, that when you are wrong I will contradict you, I am not your slave "

"Not my slave!" repeats the gentleman, bitterly, "and you still mean to say that in Blackburn's new house there are not more than fourteen doors, including the door of the wine-cellar?"

"I mean to say," retorts the lady, beating time with her hair-brush on the palm of her hand ' that in that house there are fourteen doors and no more "

' Well, then, cries the gentleman, raising in despair, and pacing the room with rapid strides "that is enough to destroy a man's intellect and drive him mad!"

By and by the gentleman comes to a little, and passing his hand across his forehead, finally reseats himself in his former chair

There is a long silence and this time the lady begins

"I appealed to Mr Jenkins, who sat next to me on the sofa in the drawing room during tea."

"Morgan, you mean," interrupted the gentleman

' I do not mean anything of the kind," answers the lady.

'Now, by all that is aggravating and impossible to bear," cries the gentleman, clenching his hands, and looking upward in agony, "who is going to insist upon it that Morgan is Jenkins!

"Do you take me to be a perfect fool?" exclaims the lady "Do you suppose I don't know one from the other? Do you suppose that I don't know that the man with the blue coat was Mr Jenkins?"

"Jenkins in a blue coat?"' cries the gentleman, with a groan, "Jenkins in a blue coat! A man who would suffer death rather than wear anything but brown '

' Do you dare to charge me with telling an untruth?' demands the lady, bursting into tears

I charge you ma am," retorts the gentleman, starting up, ' with being a contradiction, a monster of aggravation, a—a—a Jenkins in a blue coat! What have I done that I should be doomed to bear such perpetual torments?"

THE FLEA —As the gaunt and terrible musketo will leave us under the influence of the cool weather, and the lively and persevering flea will begin to stir about to take his place we will forestall his arrival by some notes concerning observations we have made of him under the microscope

'When a flea is made to appear as large as an elephant, we can see all the wonderful parts of its formation, and are astonished to find that it has a coat of armor much more complete than ever war nor wore, and composed of strong polished plates fitted over each other each covered like a tortoise sheel, where they meet hundreds of strong quills project like those on the back of the porcupine or hedgehog There are the arched neck, the bright eyes the transparent cases, piercers to puncture the skin, a sucker to draw away the blood, six long legs, four of which are folded on the breast, all ready, at any moment to be thrown out with tremendous force for that jump which bothers one when they want to catch him and at the end of each leg hooked claws to enable him to cling to whatever he alights upon A flea can jump a hundred times his own length, which is the same as if a man jumped to the hight of seven hundred feet, and he can draw a load two hundred times his own weight."

THE RENEGADES —Only two of the renegades who have been conspicuously active in the treasonable desertion of the Union party, have achieved the object of their ambition These are Robinson of the Third and Stewart of the Fourth, who both ran in districts with immense Democratic majorities 'General" Robert H Pruyn will have opportunity to muse in undisturbed retirement up on the exceeding impolicy of bartering principle in the hope of personal advantage Tom Hurton of Montgomery has been left out in the wet by a vote that will probably satisfy even his obtuse intellect that the people have gudged upon his political suicide Palmer Kellogg will have to content himself with future efforts to restore a fortune upon which his ' election expenses" have made serious inroads—he can never repair his shattered reputation Tom Carroll the ' biggest toad in the puddle is also most ungraciously whipped Gid: Reynolds follows his compeers of the Philadelphia movement into a disgraceful retiracy But what need to multiply the list? The verdict is the same everywhere Find a man who has identified himself with treason to the Union party in this campaign and you have discovered a defunct politician —Albany (N Y) Journal

HARVARD COLLEGE —The following statistics concerning Harvard College are contained in the catalogue just issued The number of professional students and resident graduates amounts to 541, viz 15 divinity students 301 medical students and 6 resident graduates There are 410 undergraduates viz 94 seniors and 80 juniors 120 sophomores and 125 freshmen making a total of 961 students connected with the University The College libraries contain 168 000 volumes

The Amazon River

The valley of the Amazon extends from west to east five degrees south of the line The length of the valley is 2 000 miles width about 1 200 miles, the source of the river 4 000 miles from its mouth, and the whole of this space is a plain, sloping from the Andes to the Atlantic Over a length of 3 000 miles the slope is only 210 feet Therefore, the Amazon valley cannot be compared to ordinary river valleys Within this vast expanse are several rivers longer than any of our Atlantic rivers, hardly known even by name There are great lakes having communication with the Amazon, and in fact, the interior is a vast fresh water ocean moving upon an inclined plane There are spaces of water so wide that the opposite shores cannot be seen The Amazon swells in three different ways In October snow begins to melt at the foot of the Andes, the rise advances by degrees, but it is not until March that it is felt in the lower waters, and it is highest in June It takes from October to June to swell, and that time for the water from the Andes to reach the ocean. That is not the principal source of the rise A swelling from the southern part takes place in the rainy months, beginning in September In October all the rivers on the right side begin to swell. The rainy season on the northern side begins in March, and it is not until May that the river begins to swell The combined action of all this is that the main stream increases in bulk from October to June, and falls again from June to October The rise is never less than thirty feet, and is frequently fifty The result may be imagined in a country where the highest inequalities of surface are from fifty to sixty and seventy five feet There are times it may be said, that the whole land is under water, and when the forest is actually navigable You can sail through the forests in every direction, and the Indians have an expression signifying "boat-path" You may go on a large river or a small river, on a boat-path of considerable dimensions or so narrow that all the boat can do is to proceed amid the dank vegetation The whole surface not occupied by water is primitive forest, and it is almost impossible to penetrate through the dense vegetation There is a variety in the vegetation which is wonderful The waters of the main stream are turbid, somewhat like a mixture of coffee with a large amount of milk, and they carry along an immense amount of sediment, which subsides the moment the water is still The mouth of the Amazon where it enters the ocean is 160 miles wide, and it is all fresh water The turbid waters can be seen long before the land is visible, and it is maintained fifty miles beyond its mouth All the great rivers which flow into the Amazon from the high mountains share in this color but, on the contrary, all the rivers, however large, which rise in the woody plain are black containing in solution a large amount of vegetable substance Notwithstanding the amount of black water poured into the Amazon, it does not become black. There is no other water system in the world like this You may compare the Mississippi, the St. Lawrence, or the large rivers of Europe and Asia with the Amazon, but all are rivers which receive a limited amount of supply from their head waters or from the head waters of their tributaries and they do not drain such an immense extent of land as does the Amazon—a basin two thousand miles long and twelve hundred miles wide The climate of this region is most delightful It is by no means hot, by no means unbearable as the deserts of Africa or the regions of Asia By reason of the trade winds and the character of the land, the Amazon running from west to east to the Atlantic, a cool breeze goes up the river all the time, so that the average temperture is 84 degrees The maximum temperature of the whole region is 92, the lowest 72 degrees. The average depression of the thermometer during the rainy season is 72 degrees, so that the changes of the temperature are as much as 15 degrees, the maximum not being more than 90 degrees, nor the minimum below 75 degrees, and a fresh breeze being felt every evening very sensibly —Prof. Agassiz

THE FARRAGUT FAMILY —A correspondent of the New Orleans Times makes some interesting statements in regard to the family of Admiral Farragut The Times says "our correspondent is high authority for any statement he makes, and he would not be likely to be misinformed in the matter "

"The Farragut family was originally Spanish, natives of Barcelona. Before the revolution the grandfather of the Admiral emigrated to the neighborhood of Norfolk, Virginia He was probably induced to do so by Colonel William Leigh, cadet of a well known family in England, who in early life had served in the Spanish infantry, and afterwards settled in Sussex county, Virginia, as a planter His son, Fernando Leigh, married a Miss Farragut, who died without issue He was the ancestor of the late eminent Virginia statesman and jurist, Benjamin Watkins Leigh, and in the maternal line of the Clabornes of Louisiana and Mississippi. George Farragut (father of the Admiral) and this Fernando Leigh was close friends, and he received his commission in the United States navy on the recommendation of Thomas Claiborne, then and for near thirty years a member of Congress from Virginia. It was after the brother of this gentleman, Colonel Augustine Claiborne, that the young Farragut mentioned in the letter was named

"Shortly afterwards the Farragut family removed to Tennessee, where they found William C C Claiborne just elected to represent the State in Congress He was soon after appointed Governor of Mississippi Territory, and thence transferred to Louisiana

"Subsequently the Farragut family removed to this city, where the father of the Admiral, and one of his brothers, a naval officer of high standing, died, here he passed his early youth, and here, some fifty years since, he received his appointment in the navy of the United States, on the application of Governor Claiborne, his steady and devoted friend In this city the Admiral has numerous relatives, honorable and respectable m who, in the late great struggle, shared with masses of the Southern people their notio duty and patriotism Their illustrious kinsm followed his own opinions, and maintained th in a career distinguished no less for personal lantry and pre-eminent professional ability t for his generous and humane conduct of the fortunate "

The Richmond Dispatch has the following regard to the Northern elections The compla that " Radical majorities are heaped up wit sort of savage delight," must be pronounced eidedly good

The elections of Tuesday make no mater change in the relative power of national part Radicalism holds its ground, and in some Sta heaps up majorities with a sort of savage del Massachusetts beholds her 70,000 with fr joy, and with Butler in Congress and two cans in her Legislature, she ought to be supre ly happy It is surprising that there is any nority in Massachusetts, and if some good we know there would only move out of the St we would be delighted to see all her citizens vo the same way.

It is quite agreeable in the wide waste of u vorable events to look upon Maryland and Delaware. They have stood out against the of Radicalism They are the only States n of the Potomac which have been able to their ground against the storm that has s over the land The elections in those States der certain the defeat the constitutional am ment even were it doubtful before Tha something to be grateful for We trust that w ever the Southern States go into the Union t will enter it without the humiliation of condit precedent that degrade them in the dust T were defeated in war but preserved their ho Participation in the Washington Governmen not so dear to them that they should sacrifice last thing that is left them to enjoy it

The Daily Oregonian.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, DEC. 19, 1866.

"The Tyrant's Plea."

We are under a world of obligation to that old Radical Roundhead and pugnacious Puritan, John Milton, for inventing a term which is doing such constant duty—we will not say service—for the Cavaliers of our time. Exactly two centuries ago he published his great epic. Somewhere in that work he characterizes "necessity" as the "tyrant's plea,"—never perhaps once dreaming that the party which is legitimately descended from the party of his enemies, would, two hundred years later, venture to quote him as an authority, or deign to draw arguments or invectives from the writings of a bigoted old Roundhead like himself. But so it is. The Copperheads of our time, the inheritors of the principles of the Cavaliers of the time of Milton, keep up a perpetual din about "necessity, the tyrant's plea," anathematizing with these words those who plead the necessity of settling our national difficulties on a basis of justice and of strict loyalty. We say we are under obligation to the old Roundhead for his invention because it furnishes a large party at the present time with about the only materials it can obtain either for an argument or for denunciation. During the last six years whenever there has been any remark about the necessity of saving the Government and of employing effective measures to save it, the reply has been something about the "tyrant's plea." At the present time whenever any one speaks of the necessity of adhering to justice and of favoring loyalty in the settlement of our difficulties, the words of the old Puritan are caught up by the apologists for treason, and made to do duty again. How great ought to be the gratitude of this party to their most powerful enemy for having originated a term, which though it does them little real service, nevertheless supplies them with materials for invective against their opponents, the "Puritan Radicals!"

But with due deference to Milton and to those who are continually citing this phrase from his epic, it may safely be asserted that the plea of necessity may be urged in behalf of liberty and justice quite as often, and with a much better grace than in behalf of tyranny. So necessity is not alone the tyrant's plea, but it is also the plea which calls for the enforcement of justice and the establishment of equal rights. Necessity was the plea on which Milton himself justified the acts of the republicans of England whose champion he became; necessity was the plea on which he defended the uprising of the English people, the overthrow of a tyrant and the institution of the Commonwealth. So now, we may plead the necessity of doing right. So now, necessity demands that the law be vindicated and that loyalty be protected. It is always necessary to be just, and justice demands that traitors should be placed under such disabilities as will restrain them from doing further wrongs. It is necessary to protect the loyalists of the South, both white and black. Is the plea of necessity, as thus presented, either the plea of tyrants or a plea for tyranny? He from whose writings this oft-quoted phrase is borrowed would not have recognized his words had he ever seen them so far perverted from their original meaning as to be used as a defense for crime, or as an argument in favor of the establishment of injustice.

The Sick Martyr.

Certain journals on the other side of the continent are still greatly exercised about the delicate health of that illustrious man, Mr. Jefferson Davis. Some of them are in a state of dreadful agony over it. It has been proclaimed daily for almost two years that the "noble victim" was sinking into an untimely grave. Yet he still lives to be a witness against that monster, "Abolition tyranny." There is some hidden fibre of vitality about him which, in spite of his tortures, still binds him to a world that is not worthy of him. Observe too, how meekly and uncomplainingly the martyr, in the midst of his sufferings, submits to his lot and braves the utmost spite of fortune! Evidently he is one of those choice spirits who are too good for earth, and hence the whole crowd of Abolitionists are banded in a conspiracy to have him removed. But in another view it begins to look as if he were one of that class of tough valetudinarians who, though continually declared to be on the brink of the grave, confound all the auguries of their friends and persist in holding on to life as if to set at naught every prediction of their speedy dissolution. We are of opinion that Jeff. Davis is not very near his end. Like many other criminals, he will never suffer for his crimes, and as his daily fare of biscuit, coffee, oysters, eggs, sugar, milk, etc., is probably quite as good as the fare furnished at Andersonville, it may safely be supposed that he will live awhile longer.

A Democratic Record.—The following condensed statement of John Morrissey's court experience explains the secret of his great popularity with the party:

IN RENSSELAER COUNTY.

Twice indicted for assault and battery. Once convicted and sentenced to jail for sixty days.
Twice indicted for burglary. Once convicted to jail for sixty days.
Once indicted for assault with intent to kill.

IN ALBANY COUNTY.

Three times indicted, convicted and sentenced for assault and battery, serving a total term of nine months in the Albany Penitentiary.

IN NEW YORK CITY.

Three times indicted for assault with intent to kill.

If John had only had the good luck to have been convicted of murder, and afterwards been reprieved, he would probably have been the next Democratic candidate for President, but as the "intent to kill" did not ripen into the deed, the unfortunate must probably be content with the position to which he has attained.

Two years ago "spades" were "trumps," now it is slung shots and burglars' tools. The Democratic party is progressive—it will next turn up pistols and daggers.—Chicago Journal.

The Oregon Statesman is still discussing the suffrage question. The following, which is the concluding sentence of a stunning leader on the subject, would seem to decide the matter conclusively against the further extension of suffrage: Surely, the Goddess of Liberty, who has risen so beautifully bright before us from the chastening chrism of revolution, would bow her regal front all crimson with the flush of shame, and sit down in the ashes of contrition to mourn the dereliction and desolation of her great domain.

The Unionist calls the youth who agonizes in this fearful way "the scarcely unbibbed driveller who is supposed to string out the superlatives and adjectives for the Statesman." This is wicked. The Unionist, it appears, is unable to see the beauty and force of extracts from the Statesman like that above given.

A high-toned representative of the Virginia chivalry, Rev. George T. Williams, who is Rector of a church at Suffolk, Virginia, was lately arrested in New York and sent to the Tombs for picking a lady's pocket while riding in an omnibus. Here is a chance for the Copperhead papers to indulge in another howl about the wickedness of the clergy. We hope this opportunity to say something denunciatory of "false priests" will not escape them.

The President's organs have frequently announced that no man is a traitor until arrested, tried and convicted. In the meantime, Mr. Johnson has issued wagon-loads of pardons to parties in the South. What were these pardons for, and what crime had the persons receiving them committed? Will the President's organs answer? Who ever heard of an innocent man being pardoned?

FROM IDAHO.

We clip from the Boise Statesman of Dec. 8th:

FAILURE OF THE COSMOS MINING COMPANY.

Ever since the stage arrived last Wednesday all sorts of rumors have been afloat concerning the failure of this company, at Silver City. The news last night is very unsatisfactory, and the whole matter is in such a state of uncertainty and obscurity that it is impossible to say what the result will be.

It appears that a man by the name of Jones, who is treasurer of the company and resides in New York, has brought a suit for $75,000 and attached the mill and mines of the company. This suit is founded upon a note given by Musgrave, agent of the company in Silver City, on the 26th of November ult. Suit was commenced on the 3d inst. The names of the parties, their relations, the dates mentioned above, and the distance between New York and Owyhee, form an interesting study and a fruitful source of speculation. Other suits have been commenced as follows: Cole, for about $7,000; Ewing & Browing, $8,000; and Tregaskis $2,000. Immense excitement prevailed up to Thursday night, and various threats of violence towards Mr. Musgrave were made, but no violence had been committed. We understand that the agents and officers of the company assure the laborers that they shall be paid in full at an early day, and that all the claims will be duly settled and operations resumed in a short time. There has been a great deal of blowing about the rich mines of the Cosmos Company, particularly the Silver cord, all of which looks curiously from the present point of view. Somebody, everybody is badly sold, or somebody takes a singular way to do business.

VIOLATION OF REVENUE LAWS.

Assessor Savage made a complaint in the U. S. District Court, last Tuesday, against Dan. Roth, a liquor dealer on Maine street, for selling liquors at wholesale without federal license therefor. Upon arrest defendant admitted the offense, and gave bonds in the sum of one thousand dollars to appear at the next April term.

LARGE BIRD.

Mr. G. J. Gray brought to town yesterday a white swan standing five feet five inches high and measuring eight feet four inches from tip to tip of wings. It was killed in the valley a few miles below town, and is a splendid specimen of that beautiful bird.

INDICTMENT FOUND.

The grand jury returned yesterday an indictment against Page, Watson and Murphy for having and keeping aparatus for counterfeiting gold dust. Page and Watson will be arraigned to plead this morning.

FROM WASHINGTON TERRITORY.

The following items are from the Walla Walla Statesman of the 14th inst.:

CROPS IN COLVILLE VALLEY.

Dr. Tobey, an old resident of Colville Valley, estimates the wheat crop for the last season at 150,000 bushels; oats, 100,000 bushels. They had also large crops of potatoes, onions and cabbages. Owing to the lack of demand for the mines, provisions of all kinds were ruling low. The millers refuse to pay more than $1 25 per bushel for wheat, which is quoted at the ruling rate.

COLVILLE MAIL.

We understand that the present contractors will decline to carry the Colville mail on and after January 1st, 1867. Reason assigned, inadequacy of compensation—$4,000 per annum. It is desirable that arrangements should be made for the continuance of this mail. A large number of settlers depend upon it exclusively for their postal facilities, to deny which, would cause serious inconvenience. We know that the compensation is entirely inadequate, but if possible, the contractors should hold on until the proper representations can be made to the Department.

The Statesman has been designated by the Secretary of State as the paper in which the laws of the United States are to be published.

State and Territorial Reorganization.

The Walla Walla Statesman favors the proposed division of Oregon by the line of the Cascade mountains, giving this State the Sound country, and reorganizing parts of Eastern Oregon and portions of Washington and of Idaho into a new Territory. The following is the concluding portion of its article on the subject:

There are many reasons that might be adduced in favor of the proposed change. The people of this valley, when they have business before the Supreme Court are compelled to go all the way to Olympia, a distance by the traveled route of full three hundred miles. In very many instances this practically amounts to a denial of justice, litigants preferring to suffer wrong rather than incur the expense and inconvenience attending a trip to the Capital. Owing to this cause, too, it is difficult to find men who will undertake to represent us in the Territorial Legislature. In that way we are substantially denied our proper influence in framing the laws for our government. Northern Idaho and Eastern Oregon labor under the same inconvenience, and it is owing to these evils that the demand has become almost universal for a Territorial reorganization. With the proposed change, we will have an organization in which all the parties are united by identity of interest, and which no section will be distant from the Capital say over two hundred miles. Under this rearrangement, Walla Walla from its central position would almost of necessity be the Capital. But the latter is a question of minor importance. The great desire is to secure an organization that will bring together people who are now separated by arbitrary lines. Eastern Oregon, Northern Idaho, and Washington Territory east of the mountains, are already joined together by great natural links, and what is now demanded is, that the National Legislature will assent to the union that was formed when these remote valleys emerged from the hand of the Creator. In this connection, and by way of conclusion, we may well address our rulers in the language of inspiration, "Whom God hath joined together, let no man put asunder."

The Population of Turkey.—M. Pierre Bargagnon, of the Presse, who long resided in Constantinople, where he was manager of the official journal, publishes the following statistics relative to the population of Turkey: "The whole Turkish Empire, according to the census made for the assessment of the 'tenths,' comprises in the aggregate a population of nearly 42,000,000, of which 18,000,000 are in Europe and 24,000,000 in Asia. Servia, Moldavia and Wallachia number 6,000,000 inhabitants, so that there remains a population of 36,000,000 for Turkey proper. Setting aside the provinces enjoying self-government, this population is divided into 11 different races; Greek rayas, 2,600,000; Armenians, 2,500,000; Syrians and Chaldeans, 2,000,000; total, 12,300,000. These constitute the Christian element. Including in it the Syrians and Chaldeans, we cannot reasonably add to it the 300,000 Jews found in these countries. Now follows the Mussulman portion, composed of 15,800,000, without reckoning 160,000 Tartars, 100,000 Turcomans, 5,000,000 Arabians, 40,000 Druses and 1,000,000 Kurds; or, in all, 6,000,000 Mohammedans of different kinds. To sum up, there are Christians, 12,300,000; Mohammedans, 6,000,000; and Mussulmans, 15,800,000; or a total population of 35,500,000; to which must be added, to make up the number of 36,000,000, the 300,000 Jews and about 200,000 Gypsies, who have no religion.

Recipe for Safety at the South.—The Nashville (Tenn.) Press and Times, in commenting upon the hostile spirit manifested toward Northern men in the South, concludes by giving the following recipe for personal safety at the South. We commend it to the attention of emigrants:

However, we have a patent recipe for being perfectly safe in the most dangerous portions of the South. Let the new-comer buy a plantation, and try to pay part down in Confederate money—new issue is best—giving a mortgage for the remainder. Though you are not likely to succeed, yet it will look as if you were "to the manor born." Say you come from some part of Mississippi or Alabama, where the d—d Freedman's Bureau had you arrested for threshing a "nigger" for asking for his wages. Having concluded your purchase, have the portrait of Jeff. Davis painted on your front door, and for fear that the people may mistake the counterfeit presentation for Abraham Lincoln, have Jeff.'s name put underneath. Then hang photographs of Bob Lee and Stonewall Jackson over your parlor mantel-piece. Procure a couple of bull-dogs, and name one Forrest and the other Hood. Finally, let yourself out lustily for "my policy;" denounce the State Government of Tennessee as a parcel of vulgar impostors.

PICTURE GALLERY.—W. R. JONES having taken the gallery corner of Front and Morrison streets, Portland, would announce to the public that he is making PHOTOGRAPHS from Locket to Life size, AMBROTYPES, MELAINOTYPES, SUN PEARLS, and CARTE DE VISITE, plain or enameled, in the best style of the art. If you want card pictures with the most beautiful enamel, at lower prices than can be had in the city or State, go to JONES' GALLERY, corner of Front and Morrison. dec17d3m2p

PICTURE NOTICE.—ELLSWORTH & CARDWELL, 80 Front Street, (Postoffice block) would notify those wanting pictures that unless they call at their PHOTOGRAPH GALLERY before the first of January, it is not likely they will again have the opportunity for FIRST-CLASS work in this city. A word to the wise is sufficient. SUN PEARLS, ALBUM CARDS and other styles executed in the same superior manner as heretofore.

SANTA CLAUS' PROCLAMATION!

I, SANTA CLAUS—known as the Children's good friend,
These PRESENTS send Greeting that all may attend,
At McCORMICK'S, on FRONT STREET, where I can be found,
Distributing GIFTS to Cash Customers round.
MERRY CHRISTMAS is coming, and HAPPY NEW YEAR,
With its PRESENTS and GIFTS will soon be here,
That Festival time when SANTA CLAUS brings
Handsome BOOKS, pretty TOYS, and other good things,
My HEAD-QUARTERS in Portland are now as of yore,
At McCORMICK'S on FRONT STREET—the FRANKLIN BOOK STORE;
There are BOOKS of all kinds, and plenty of TOYS,
DOLLS for the Girls, and DRUMS for the Boys,
PHOTOGRAPH ALBUMS, and BIBLES so nice,
From one dollar to twenty—they vary in price—
GIFT BOOKS and PRESENTS, and DOLLS of all sizes,
Some move their heads and some move their eyes as There's Wagons with Horses, and Wagons without,
Whips, Whistles and Whirligigs, for turning about,
There's cities in boxes, with trees in each park;
Whole regiments of soldiers, and all Noah's ark,
There's BOOKS of all sizes, and Alphabet Blocks,
And TOYS of all kinds, down to Jack-in-the-box.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, DEC. 19, 1866.

"The Tyrant's Plea."

We are under a world of obligation to that old Radical Roundhead and pugnacious Puritan, John Milton, for inventing a term which is doing such constant duty—we will not say service—for the Cavaliers of our time. Exactly two centuries ago he published his great epic. Somewhere in that work he characterizes "necessity" as the "tyrant's plea,"—never perhaps once dreaming that the party which is legitimately descended from the party of his enemies, would, two hundred years later, venture to quote him as an authority, or deign to draw arguments or invectives from the writings of a bigoted old Roundhead like himself. But so it is. The Copperheads of our time, the inheritors of the principles of the Cavaliers of the time of Milton, keep up a perpetual din about "necessity, the tyrant's plea," anathematizing with these words those who plead the necessity of settling our national difficulties on a basis of justice and of strict loyalty. We say we are under obligation to the old Roundhead for his invention because it furnishes a large party at the present time with about the only materials it can obtain either for an argument or for denunciation. During the last six years whenever there has been any remark about the necessity of saving the Government and of employing effective measures to save it, the reply has been something about the "tyrant's plea." At the present time whenever any one speaks of the necessity of adhering to justice and of favoring loyalty in the settlement of our difficulties, the words of the old Puritan are caught up by the apologists for treason, and and made to do duty again. How great ought to be the gratitude of this party to their most powerful enemy for having originated a term, which though it does them little real service, nevertheless supplies them with materials for invective against their opponents, the "Puritan Radicals!"

But with due deference to Milton and to those who are continually citing this phrase from his epic, it may safely be asserted that the plea of necessity may be urged in behalf of liberty and justice quite as often, and with a much better grace than in behalf of tyranny. So necessity is not alone the tyrant's plea, but it is also the plea which calls for the enforcement of justice and the establishment of equal rights. Necessity was the plea on which Milton himself justified the acts of the republicans of England whose champion he became; necessity was the plea on which he defended the uprising of the English people, the overthrow of a tyrant and the institution of the Commonwealth. So now, we may plead the necessity of doing right. So now, necessity demands that the law be vindicated and that loyalty be protected. It is always necessary to be just, and justice demands that traitors should be placed under such disabilities as will restrain them from doing further wrongs. It is necessary to protect the loyalists of the South, both white and black. Is the plea of necessity, as thus presented, either the plea of tyrants or a plea for tyranny? He from whose writings this oft-quoted phrase is borrowed would not have recognized his words had he ever seen them so far perverted from their original meaning as to be used as a defense for crime, or as an argument in favor of the establishment of injustice.

The Sick Martyr.

Certain journals on the other side of the continent are still greatly exercised about the delicate health of that illustrious man, Mr. Jefferson Davis. Some of them are in a state of dreadful agony over it. It has been proclaimed daily for almost two years that the "noble victim" was sinking into an untimely grave. Yet he still lives to be a witness against that monster, "Abolition tyranny." There is some hidden fibre of vitality about him which, in spite of his tortures, still binds him to a world that is not worthy of him. Observe too, how meekly and uncomplainingly the martyr, in the midst of his sufferings, submits to his lot and braves the utmost spite of fortune! Evidently he is one of those choice spirits who are too good for earth, and hence the whole crowd of Abolitionists are banded in a conspiracy to have him removed. But in another view it begins to look as if he were one of that class of tough valetudinarians who, though continually declared to be on the brink of the grave, confound all the auguries of their friends and persist in holding on to life as if to set at naught every prediction of their speedy dissolution. We are of opinion that Jeff. Davis is not very near his end. Like many other criminals, he will never suffer for his crimes, and as his daily fare of biscuit, coffee, oysters, eggs, sugar, milk, etc., is probably quite as good as the fare furnished at Andersonville, it may safely be supposed that he will live awhile longer.

A DEMOCRATIC RECORD.—The following condensed statement of John Morrissey's court experience explains the secret of his great popularity with the party:

IN RENSSELAER COUNTY.

Twice indicted for assault and battery. Once convicted and sentenced to jail for sixty days.

Twice indicted for burglary. Once convicted to jail for sixty days.

Once indicted for assault with intent to kill.

IN ALBANY COUNTY.

Three times indicted, convicted and sentenced for assault and battery, serving a total term of nine months in the Albany Penitentiary.

IN NEW YORK CITY.

Three times indicted for assault with intent to kill.

If John had only had the good luck to have been convicted of murder, and afterwards been reprieved, he would probably have been the next Democratic candidate for President, but as the "intent to kill" did not ripen into the deed, the unfortunate must probably be content with the position to which he has attained.

Two years ago "spades" were "trumps," now it is slung shots and burglars' tools. The Democratic party is progressive—it will next turn up pistols and daggers.—Chicago Journal.

The Oregon Statesman is still discussing the suffrage question. The following, which is the concluding sentence of a stunning leader on the subject, would seem to decide the matter conclusively against the further extension of suffrage: "Surely, the Goddess of Liberty, who has risen so beautifully bright before us from the chastening chrism of revolution, would bow her regal front all crimson with the flush of shame, and sit down in the ashes of contrition to mourn the dereliction and desolation of her great domain."

The Unionist calls the youth who agonizes in this fearful way "the scarcely unbibbed driveller who is supposed to string out the superlatives and adjectives for the Statesman." This is wicked. The Unionist, it appears, is unable to see the beauty and force of extracts from the Statesman like that above given.

A high-toned representative of the Virginia chivalry, Rev. George T. Williams, who is Rector of a church at Suffolk, Virginia, was lately arrested in New York and sent to the Tombs for picking a lady's pocket while riding in an omnibus. Here is a chance for the Copperhead papers to indulge in another howl about the wickedness of the clergy. We hope this opportunity to say something denunciatory of "false priests" will not escape them.

The President's organs have frequently announced that no man is a traitor until arrested, tried and convicted. In the meantime, Mr. Johnson has issued wagon-loads of pardons to parties in the South. What were these pardons for, and what crime had the persons receiving them committed? Will the President's organs answer? Who ever heard of an innocent man being pardoned?

FROM IDAHO.

We clip from the Boise Statesman of Dec. 8th:

FAILURE OF THE COSMOS MINING COMPANY.

Ever since the stage arrived last Wednesday all sorts of rumors have been afloat concerning the failure of this company, at Silver City. The news last night is very unsatisfactory, and the whole matter is in such a state of uncertainty and obscurity that it is impossible to say what the result will be.

It appears that a man by the name of Jones, who is treasurer of the company and resides in New York, has brought a suit for $75,000 and attached the mill and mines of the company. This suit is founded upon a note given by Musgrave, agent of the company in Silver City, on the 26th of November ult. Suit was commenced on the 3d inst. The names of the parties, their relations, the dates mentioned above, and the distance between New York and Owyhee, form an interesting study and a fruitful source of speculation. Other suits have been commenced as follows: Cole, for about $7,000; Ewing & Browing, $8,000; and Tregaskis $2,000. Immense excitement prevailed up to Thursday night, and various threats of violence towards Mr. Musgrave were made, but no violence had been committed. We understand that the agents and officers of the company assure the laborers that they shall be paid in full at an early day, and that all the claims will be duly settled and operations resumed in a short time. There has been a great deal of blowing about the rich mines of the Cosmos Company, particularly the Silver cord, all of which looks curiously from the present point of view. Somebody, everybody is badly sold, or somebody takes a singular way to do business.

VIOLATION OF REVENUE LAWS.

Assessor Savage made a complaint in the U. S. District Court, last Tuesday, against Dan. Roth, a liquor dealer on Maine street, for selling liquors at wholesale without federal license therefor. Upon arrest defendant admitted the offense, and gave bonds in the sum of one thousand dollars to appear at the next April term.

LARGE BIRD.

Mr. G. J. Gray brought to town yesterday a white swan standing five feet five inches high and measuring eight feet four inches from tip to tip of wings. It was killed in the valley a few miles below town, and is a splendid specimen of that beautiful bird.

INDICTMENT FOUND.

The grand jury returned yesterday an indictment against Page, Watson and Murphy for having and keeping apparatus for counterfeiting gold dust. Page and Watson will be arraigned to plead this morning.

FROM WASHINGTON TERRITORY.

The following items are from the Walla Walla Statesman of the 14th inst.:

CROPS IN COLVILLE VALLEY.

Dr. Tobey, an old resident of Colville Valley, estimates the wheat crop for the last season at 150,000 bushels; oats, 100,000 bushels. They had also large crops of potatoes, onions and cabbages. Owing to the lack of demand for the mines, provisions of all kinds were ruling low. The millers refuse to pay more than $1 25 per bushel for wheat, which is quoted at the ruling rate.

COLVILLE MAIL.

We understand that the present contractors will decline to carry the Colville mail on and after January 1st, 1867. Reason assigned, inadequacy of compensation—$4,000 per annum. It is desirable that arrangements should be made for the continuance of this mail. A large number of settlers depend upon it exclusively for their postal facilities, to deny which, would cause serious inconvenience. We know that the compensation is entirely inadequate, but if possible, the contractors should hold on until the proper representations can be made to the Department.

The Statesman has been designated by the Secretary of State as the paper in which the laws of the United States are to be published.

State and Territorial Reorganization.

The Walla Walla Statesman favors the proposed division of Oregon by the line of the Cascade mountains, giving this State the Sound country, and reorganizing parts of Eastern Oregon and portions of Washington and of Idaho into a new Territory. The following is the concluding portion of its article on the subject:

There are many reasons that might be adduced in favor of the proposed change. The people of this valley, when they have business before the Supreme Court are compelled to go all the way to Olympia, a distance by the traveled route of full three hundred miles. In very many instances this practically amounts to a denial of justice, litigants preferring to suffer wrong rather than incur the expense and inconvenience attending a trip to the Capital. Owing to this cause, too, it is difficult to find men who will undertake to represent us in the Territorial Legislature. In that way we are substantially denied our proper influence in framing the laws for our government. Northern Idaho and Eastern Oregon labor under the same inconvenience, and it is owing to these evils that the demand has become almost universal for a Territorial reorganization. With the proposed change, we will have an organization in which all the parties are united by identity of interest, and which no section will be distant from the Capital say over two hundred miles. Under this rearrangement, Walla Walla from its central position would almost of necessity be the Capital. But the latter is a question of minor importance. The great desire is to secure an organization that will bring together people who are now separated by arbitrary lines. Eastern Oregon, Northern Idaho, and Washington Territory east of the mountains, are already joined together by great natural links, and what is now demanded is, that the National Legislature will assent to the union that was formed when these remote valleys emerged from the hand of the Creator. In this connection, and by way of conclusion, we may well address our rulers in the language of inspiration, "Whom God hath joined together, let no man put asunder."

THE POPULATION OF TURKEY.—M. Pierre Bargnon, of the Press, who long resided in Constantinople, where he was manager of the official journal, publishes the following statistics relative to the population of Turkey: "The whole Turkish Empire, according to the census made for the assessment of the 'tenths,' comprises in the aggregate a population of nearly 42,000,000, of which 18,000,000 are in Europe and 24,000,000 in Asia. Servia, Moldavia and Wallachia number 6,006,000 inhabitants, so that there remains a population of 36,000,000 for Turkey proper. Setting aside the provinces enjoying self-government, this population is divided into 11 different races; Greek rayahs, 2,600,000; Armenians, 2,500,000; Syrians and Chaldeans, 2,000,000; total, 12,800,000. These constitute the Christian element. Including in it the Syrians and Chaldeans, we cannot reasonably add to it the 300,000 Jews found in those countries. Now follows the Mussulman portion, composed of 15,800,000, without reckoning 160,000 Tartars, 100,000 Turcomans, 5,600,000 Arabians, 40,000 Druses and 1,000,000 Kurds; or, in all, 6,900,000 Mohammedans of different kinds. To sum up, there are Christians, 12,800,000; Mohammedans, 6,900,000; and Mussulmans, 15,800,000; or a total population of 35,500,000; to which must be added, to make up the numer of 36,000,000, the 300,000 Jews and about 200,000 Gypsies, who have no religion.

RECIPE FOR SAFETY AT THE SOUTH.—The Nashville (Tenn.) Press and Times, in commenting upon the hostile spirit manifested toward Northern men in the South, concludes by giving the following recipe for personal safety at the South. We commend it to the attention of emigrants:

However, we have a patent recipe for being perfectly safe in the most dangerous portions of the South. Let the new-comer buy a plantation, and try to pay part down in Confederate money—new issue is best—giving a mortgage for the remainder. Though you are not likely to succeed, yet it will look as if you were "to the manor born." Say you come from some part of Mississippi or Alabama, where the d—d Freedman's Bureau had you arrested for threshing a "nigger" for asking for his wages. Having concluded your purchase, have the portrait of Jeff. Davis painted on your front door, and for fear that the people may mistake the counterfeit presentation for Abraham Lincoln, have Jeff.'s name put underneath. Then hang photographs of Bob Lee and Stonewall Jackson over your parlor mantel-piece. Procure a couple of bull-dogs, and name one Forrest and the other Hood. Finally, let yourself out lustily for "my policy," denounce the State Government of Tennessee as a parcel of vulgar impostors.

PICTURE GALLERY.—W. R. JONES having taken the gallery corner of Front and Morrison streets, Portland, would announce to the public that he is making PHOTOGRAPHS from Locket to Life size, AMBROTYPES, MELAINOTYPES, SUN PEARLS, and CARTE DE VISITE, plain or enameled, in the best style of the art. If you want card pictures with the most beautiful enamel, at lower prices than can be had in the city or State, go to JONES' GALLERY, corner of Front and Morrison.

PICTURE NOTICE.—ELLSWORTH & CARDWELL, 80 Front Street, (Postoffice block) would notify those wanting pictures that unless they call at their PHOTOGRAPH GALLERY before the first of January, it is not likely they will again have the opportunity for FIRST-CLASS work in this city. A word to the wise is sufficient. SUN PEARLS, ALBUM CARDS and other styles executed in the same superior manner as heretofore.

THE ART OF ADVERTISING.—A considerable majority of successful business men, owe their fortunes to liberal, and perhaps, [illegible] artful, advertising. There is a peculiar art which not all men understand, in arranging an advertisement as to its head, its language, the time of its appearance, its duration in the newspaper column, &c., so as to attract the reader and fasten upon his mind the impression desired. In our fast times, advertising is more studied than of old, and many improvements and new dodges have been introduced to entrap the reader into learning what his neighbors have to sell or what they propose to do. By this means the advertising columns of a newspaper have come to be almost as much a part of the proper reading departments. We find the following very just remarks on this subject in Harper's Magazine for last month:

"Properly regarded, the advertising columns of a newspaper are among the most important, for no man really becomes acquainted even with the news of the day until he has thoroughly perused the advertisements. They are the pulse of commerce and universal activity. They contain not only rare specimens of human idiosyncrasy, but afford a general view of life in every possible phase. They aid the arts and sciences; they minister to love; they speak of change; sometimes they cause a smile, sometimes a tear. To a sick man they promise health; to a poor man they offer wealth; the [illegible] is posted in amusements; the book-buyer learns the title and price of the last new work; the house hunter reads of a desirable and eligible tenant for "a lady without children;" the traveler of the best means of conveyance; the unemployed of employment; in fine, every [illegible] want is suppositiously supplied by the advertising department of a daily newspaper."

The same magazine furnishes several columns of specimen advertisements, some severely business like, others [illegible], ludicrous, humorous, pathetic, sadly serious, showing almost every conceivable phase of the advertising art. We cannot spare space for more than two or three of them. Here is a whimsical specimen from the Londonderry Journal, of 1783: "WHEREAS, On January, the 13th, 1783, it pleased Kind Providence to bless Mathew Neely, of Burnally, Parish of Tamlaghtfinlagan, and county of Londonderry, a man child of good appearance, promising and amiable, and hopes the Being who caused him to exist will grant him grace. In consideration and in remembrance of the many great deeds done by that universally renowned patriot, General Washington, the said Mathew Neely hath done himself the honor of calling the said man child by the name of George Washington Neely, he being the first child known or so called in this kingdom by the name of Washington, that brilliant Western star."

The following does not need to be labelled to be known as a genuine Hibernicism: "This is to certify that I, [illegible] O'Flanagan, am not the man who was tarred and feathered by the liberty mob on Tuesday last; and I am ready to give 20 guineas to any man who will bet me 50 that I am the other man who goes by my name."

Here is a specimen of the "catch" advertisement, a class that goes usually under the "special" or some such head: "When Anaxagoras was told of the death of his son, he only said, 'I know he was mortal.' So, we say a splendid pair of ladies' slippers, we say, must they came from Crispin Puffer's."

Harper closes the article from which we have quoted, with the following: "But by universal consent, the palm is accorded to the late George Robins the palm in the high style of Commercial puffing. His advertisements were artistically written. Like Martin, he had the art of investing every landscape and building that he described with an importance and majesty not attainable by other hands. He did, perhaps, go beyond the yielding limit of poetical license, when he described one portion of a place which he was about to subject to public competition as adorned with a 'hanging wood,' which the [illegible] purchaser found out meant nothing more nor less than the old gallows. But then he redeemed slight [illegible] of this kind by touches which displayed a [illegible] and overflowing genius for puffing. On one occasion he had made the beauties of an estate so enchanting that he deemed it necessary to blur his description by a fault or two, lest it should prove too bright and good 'for human nature's daily food.' 'But there are two drawbacks to this property,' sighed out this apostle of the mart, 'the litter of the rose leaves and the noise of the nightingales.' Certainly the rhetoric of exquisite puffing could [illegible] go."

It will now "conquer a close" by improving the [illegible] and adding words of advice:

1. TO BUSINESS MEN.—(1.) Advertise. (2.) Advertise [illegible]. (3.) Advertise courageously.
2. TO THE PEOPLE AT LARGE.—(1.) Read the Advertisements. (2.) Study them, and verily they shall be for your profit.

[illegible]—We received a letter last evening from Mr. R. Parker, dated Umatilla, December 13th, from which we take the following news: "There is [illegible] excitement in town about a shooting scrape which occurred this evening between a gambler named [illegible] and a packer or teamster by the name of [illegible]. The particulars as I learn are about as follows: The packer had been drinking and had had a fight with another man last evening. Being still intoxicated this evening, he was met by Fletcher in a saloon and they had a quarrel about throwing dice for drinks. Romaine soon stepped out and went into [illegible]. Fletcher went to the outside of the door [illegible] and waited till Romaine came out, when [illegible] a word he knocked Romaine down by striking him on the head with a revolver, rendering him [illegible] helpless. Fletcher then cursed him, pulled him up and dared him to fight. Romaine replied that [illegible], but soon after recovering got up, went [illegible] through the saloon. Fletcher followed into [illegible], took a drink, lit a cigar and went out again. [illegible] Romaine met and both commenced shooting [illegible]. Seven shots were fired. Fletcher is supposed mortally wounded. [He died the next day, [illegible] by a gentleman who came down last evening. [illegible]] Romaine is in jail. The feeling among the [illegible] people here is much against Fletcher, who, I [illegible], is a gambler from Montana, with a reputation [illegible] a desperado......Upon arriving here to-day, we [illegible] snow and ice, yet I think the river will not [illegible] for several days to come. The ice is not in the [illegible], but in ponds where there is but little motion. [illegible] have been out skating this week......Business is [illegible] in this city......I still find the employes on [illegible] line very kind and obliging. Our old pioneer, Col. [illegible], well known as one of the most enterprising men on the Pacific coast, is along and on his way to Walla Walla. Mr. Cain, Wells, Fargo & Co.'s messenger, is at [illegible], faithful as ever. Mr. Alvord, Marshal of Idaho, [illegible] Judge Kelly and other prominent citizens of [illegible] among the passengers to-day."

"THE MEUSSDORFFER HATTERS!"—The Meussdorffer family, [illegible] by an article in the Marysville Appeal, have a history, [illegible]. They have been hatters from generation to generation for two hundred years. Although [illegible] the present Meussdorffers have all done [illegible] and traveling in various parts of the world to [illegible] themselves in the manufacturing art. J. C. [illegible], the elder brother, came from Paris to New York in 1846, and to California in 1849, where he first established himself in Sacramento and afterwards in San Francisco. Konrad came out from Germany in 1854, [illegible] in Portland—in 1858, and Martin in 1860. They now have manufacturing establishments in San Francisco, [illegible] in Marysville, Portland, New York [illegible]. We learn from Henry Meussdorffer of this city that in October last he sent a case of his hats made [illegible] Portland shop, to the Paris Exhibition, for competition against the manufacturers of the world. The case is attached to the [illegible] of which Mr. M. has a photograph, [illegible] executed in India ink by J. H. Pierce of Marysville, and is itself a fine work of art. Mr. Meussdorffer's contribution to the Paris Exhibition is probably the only one of the kind from the Pacific coast.

COUNTY COURT [illegible], JUDGE.—Proceedings of [illegible], as follows: L. Besser, Stephen Coffin and [illegible] vs. E. W. Nottage; motion by plaintiffs [illegible] to issue execution on judgment for the sum [illegible].

State of Oregon vs. Ann Fenton; sent up from Justice's court [illegible] of adultery; admitted to bail in the sum of [illegible] at the next term of Court; recognizance filed and defendant discharged from custody of [illegible].

[illegible] vs. Joseph Dalsy et al.; ordered that service [illegible] be made by publication.

[illegible] Miller vs. Stephen D. Bonser and John Bonser; [illegible] and confirmation of Sheriff's sale.

[illegible]—We are indebted to somebody, unknown, [illegible] printed card circular, containing some [illegible] about the "Pacific Insurance Company" [illegible] for 1867. Among the items which [illegible] to know are the facts that all losses are paid [illegible] that good—that the year 1867 [illegible] the first day of January, and that New Years [illegible] same day—which is a coincidence. We [illegible] for future reference. Ladd & Tilton are [illegible] Portland for the Insurance Co., and we will [illegible].

[illegible].—Capt. Adams, formerly a [illegible] in this city, came up from Astoria yesterday. While walking upon the wharf on his way to the steamer, [illegible] yesterday morning, he stepped off into [illegible], but having his umbrella spread, [illegible] down easy and, though unable to swim, [illegible] up by it till rescued from his perilous position. He got off with no further damage than the loss of [illegible] silk plug and his spectacles which went down [illegible] could see.

A YEAR AGO.—A year ago yesterday, the 18th, the [illegible] left this city for Vancouver, but upon [illegible] the Columbia, found ice running so heavily that [illegible] make no head against it and was obliged to [illegible] back into the Willamette. So far, this year there [illegible] in the Columbia and no weather cold [illegible] to freeze a potatoe out in the open air. The [illegible] is going on in a remarkably mild, though somewhat [illegible] humor.

[illegible] ABOUT THE COURT HOUSE.—A fine sidewalk has been completed on three sides of the Court House block, and the fourth or West side will be soon finished. We are informed that the fence in front will be [illegible] this winter, and the rest of the block will be [illegible] with grass seed. The sewers which have given the [illegible] some trouble have been repaired, so that everything in that line is now lovely.

CHANGE OF HEADQUARTERS.—The Headquarters of the Military Department of the Columbia has been removed from Fort Vancouver to Portland. Gen. Steele and staff [illegible] the new quarters.—Idaho World.

[illegible]. Your newspaper enterprise, James, has [illegible] the fact.

[illegible] PAPER.—We have received the second number of a paper of this title which has just been started at [illegible]. It is a good looking sheet, is published by [illegible] & Avery, and is as radically Democratic in [illegible] knows how to make it.

[illegible]—The upper Willamette has again [illegible] that it is thought practicable to send a boat to Eugene City. The Active will, accordingly, leave Canemah this morning for Eugene and way landings.

TROOPS AT FT. VANCOUVER.—We learn that there are [illegible] of soldiers at Fort Vancouver, and [illegible] to the impracticable nature of the roads, Capt. Eaby's company will remain at that post till Spring.

AUCTION SALE.—Chapter I of Richardson's sale of watches, jewelry, &c., at Cohen's store, was finished yesterday—disposing of the watches. To-day, chapter II, to be continued until the entire stock shall be disposed of. If, as Richardson says, the goods are going at a "shameful! shameful!! shameful!!! sacrifice," you had better sit be there and invest.

WILLAMETTE FREIGHTS.—The freight list of the Senator yesterday morning, consisted of 82 boxes dried fruit, 303 boxes apples, and 267 sacks feed.

The Alert's list contained 1,328 quarter sacks flour, 4 bales woolen goods, 8 boxes eggs, 6 coops fowls, and 1[illegible] boxes apples.

A RARE CHANCE.—Barman Bros. will remove on or about the 1st day of February next, to No. 115 Front street, they therefore offer their present stock of Winter Clothing at reduced rates. Call and examine their prices before purchasing.

A HANDSOME PRESENT.—Ladies or gentlemen wishing to make presents for Christmas or New Years, cannot do better than purchase one of Mrs. Lorya's fashionable Bonnets, or Hats, at half the usual prices. Call and see.

STATE ITEMS.

There has been considerable petty thieving about Salem lately. Nobody has been caught.

The statement that the Indian scouts lately enrolled for service in the upper country are about to be discharged, is incorrect. Mr. Darragh starts out with his detachment from the Dalles to-day.

The Columbia Press urges the removal of the Indians from the Umatilla Reservation, so that that highly valuable tract of land may be thrown open for settlement by better class of people.

The Unionist says: The Ellendale Woolen Factory is now furnishing the market with a variety of woolen goods unsurpassed in quality by any manufactory in the State. On last Friday we noticed a wagon heavily loaded with flannels, tweeds and other varieties of cloth, brought into town from Ellendale.

The first term of Willamette University for the present year, says the Statesman of Monday, closes this week. Examinations of the various classes will be held on Wednesday and Thursday. The students will then separate for a vacation holiday, of two weeks, at the termination of which they will again meet to resume their march up the sacred hill. We are sorry to learn that the new building is not yet ready to receive them.

The Jacksonville Sentinel of last week says: "The Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue, for this and Josephine counties, (J. M. Sutton,) has just returned from the latter, where he has been making a raid on delinquent tax payers. He found a number of Chinese violating the law, by peddling without license, and at once proceeded to consecate what property was in sight. He succeeded in securing property to the amount of four or five hundred dollars, with which to swell the United States treasury."

A letter from Grande Ronde Valley to the Walla Walla Statesman, gives information that on the evening of the 8th inst., one William A. Pols was shot and killed at Hendershott's Point by a man named Thomas Martin. The parties had a difficulty on the morning in regard to a settlement for labor and money loaned. Martin met the deceased in the road between Crawford's store and Hendershott's hotel, and without provocation fired a shot from a dragoon pistol, which passed through the right kidney, causing death in about five hours. Deceased lived two years at Rock Point, Jackson county, Oregon, was formerly from Easton, Penn., and a single man. Martin has, for the last four months, been a resident of this valley, is a widower, and formerly from Warsaw, Illinois. Mr. Hendershott immediately arrested the murderer, and held him until the arrival of Sheriff Craige, who took him in charge. The case was heard before Justice Wilson, who held him to appear and answer at the May term of the District Court.

The report that ex-Governor Seymour, of New York, was in favor of the constitutional amendment, may be correct, or it may not; it matters little one way or the other; but it is a significant and encouraging fact that, in his own county (Oneida) the Republican gain this year over the vote of 1864 was 330. While Winchester county, where Mayor Hoffman's real home is, gave him over six hundred less votes than it did Seymour two years ago.

Down in California the farmers are calling for more rain. Wish they had a part of ours.

HOLIDAY PRESENTS.—WEIL BROS. have a large and varied assortment of fine dress goods—such as Moire antique silk dresses, French and Irish poplins, etc.—which they are selling off at cost, affording an excellent opportunity for the purchase of HOLIDAY PRESENTS. They also offer, at cost, the choicest stock of custom-made clothing and Gents' furnishing goods.

We Still Live.—A special meeting of Couch Engine Co. No. 4 will be held on the corner of Eighth and E streets this evening at 7½ o'clock. Every member is expected to be present as business of great importance is to come before the company.

WM. DEERARDOFF, President,
ROBERT HOLMAN, Secretary.

CONSUL GENERAL.—It may be of interest to some to know that Prussia contemplates sending a Consul General to New York, but of far greater importance to the citizens of Oregon is the fact that KOHN & FISHER continue to sell fine custom-made clothing at prices that defy competition, a visit to their establishment, No. 111 Front street, will satisfy all of the truth of our assertion.

IMPORTANCE OF HAVING DAVIS' PAIN KILLER ALWAYS ON HAND.

Extract from his letter, published in the Baptist Missionary Magazine:

"For the first time since I have been in India, I have been stung by a scorpion. I went out this morning to my exercises, as usual, at early dawn, and having occasion to use an old box, on taking off the cover I put my hand on a scorpion, which immediately resented the insult by thrusting its sting into the palm of my hand. The instantaneous and severe pain which darted through the system is quite incredible; what an awful virulent poison their sting must contain! I FLEW TO MY BOTTLE OF DAVIS' PAIN KILLER, and found it to be true to its name; after a few moments' relief, I saturated a small piece of sponge, bound it on my hand, and went about by exercises, feeling no more particular inconvenience."

STOP THAT COUGHING

SOME OF YOU CAN'T, AND WE PITY you. You have tried every remedy but the ONE destined, by its intrinsic merit, to supersede all similar preparations. It is not surprising you should be reluctant to try something else after the many experiments you have made of trashy compounds foisted on the public as a certain cure; but

Pulmonary Syrup

is really the VERY BEST remedy ever compounded for the cure of Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Asthma, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis and Consumption. Thousands of people in California and Oregon have been already benefitted by the surprising curative powers of

Pulmonary Syrup

and with one accord give it their unqualified approbation. We now address ourselves to all who are unacquainted with this, the greatest Panacea of the age, for the healing of all diseases of the Throat and Lungs, assuring you that has cured thousands and it will cure YOU if you try it.

Pulmonary Syrup

This invaluable medicine is pleasant to the taste; soothing, healing and strengthening in its effects; entirely free from all poisonous or deleterious drugs, and perfectly harmless under all circumstances.

Manufactory Established in June, 1851.

STEAM POWER, NOS. 625 AND 627 FRONT ST.

HAS CONSTANTLY ON HAND GROUND AND ROASTED COFFEE, GREEN COFFEE of the best qualities. CREAM OF TARTAR and SPICES of all sorts.

The undersigned, who has always enjoyed public confidence for the excellent quality of his Coffee, neglects nothing to justify the good name acquired by his productions, the sale of which daily increases. The acknowledged superiority of his merchandise, which commands here, and in the markets of the interior, a relatively higher price, excites the cupidity of some manufacturers, and every day he sees increasing the number of those who, by counterfeit or imitation of his mark, seek to deceive the public, palming upon them their inferior productions for the genuine G. VENARD CHARTRES COFFEE. This fraud can deceive nobody after a trial, but only adds to the favorable opinion of the consumers, the very flattering though unwilling testimony of the counterfeiters. Nevertheless, buyers should be forewarned, and placed on their guard against this practice.

My Pillow and I

How brave and how strong in the world's rough crowd,
Where men at the shrine of Mammon are bowed
How glad in the gay in the glare of the day
When the din of trade drives sadness away,
And then low feeble and weary and lone
When night's black wing o'er the city be thrown—
How cowardly weak as I wakeful lie
Is known but to us—my pillow and I

Then the loves and hates that I half forget,
In life's busy hours ere the sun is set
And pondered o'er with a smile or a tear,
And whisper the names of the near and dear
Or I humbly number the wasted years
Of a vanished youth with its hopes and fears,
Till perchance I startle the night with a sigh,
But we're used to that—my pillow and I

We are right good friends, my pillow and I
I tell it my wrongs when no one is nigh
And it ne'er reveals my confessions weak
But kisses in pity my feverish cheek
Forever recoils with a feigned alarm
From the rough embrace of my weary arm,
But gives me repose no treasure can buy
A sacred tie binds us—my pillow and I

It knows full well in the watches we keep
'Twixt a whispered prayer and reluctant sleep—
It knows full well how the shadows last
Which passion and pride o'er the heart have cast
And it blots the tears that are vainly shed
O'er the hopes destroyed and ambition dead,
Then it brings forgetfulness by and by
And we dream in peace—my pillow and I.

In the days and nights of disease and pain
It has cooled the fire of a wandering brain,
It has lured me back when I seemed to stand
On the shadowy brink of another land—
Yes, tempted me back with its gentle caress,
And soothed with its touches my cruel distress
Though others prove false, the world I defy
To part or estrange—my pillow and I

Who Wrote Shakspeare's Plays?

The theory advocated by Miss Delia Bacon, in Putnam's Magazine for January, 1852, that Lord Bacon was the author of the plays published under the name of Shakspeare, has been revived by an assiduous Shakspearian scholar—Mr Nathaniel Holmes, of St. Louis,—whose arguments in behalf of his theory are far more elaborately and fully developed than those of Miss Bacon.

It appears that Mr. Holmes was very favorably impressed by Miss Bacon's theory, and at once set out to investigate the subject, with a degree of enthusiasm, persistency, and industry really commendable, however we may be indisposed to agree with the results of his researches Indeed, he has studied the contemporaneous literary and political history of Bacon's and Shakspeare's times so well, that he has been able to put into readable shape a large mass of facts, old and new, that are worthy of some attention.

He first attempts to prove that Shakspeare was not, in any sense, an educated man. He then asserts that "no original manuscript of any play or poem, letter or other prose composition, in the handwriting of William Shakspeare, has ever been discovered," he says

He makes no mention of his manuscripts or literary property in his will, nor is there a trace of evidence that they ever came into the possession of his executors, or of any member of his family. But for this there may have been the less occasion, if we assume that the manuscript copies had all been sold to the theatre, and that not a single duplicate copy had ever been retained in his own possession. It might be possible, indeed, that some of them may have been burnt with the Globe Theatre, in 1613, when the Fortune was burnt, in 1621, we know the play-books were all lost. It is a wholly gratuitous assumption, however, though barely possible, that they were heedlessly cast aside into old chests, and suffered to be destroyed by fires, or that they fell into the hands of ignorant persons to be used for waste paper. If he had contemplated a revision of his works for publication during his own life, from the accomplishment of which he was prevented by sudden illness and death, it is scarcely credible that he should not have given some instructions to that end, either to his executors in his will, or to some confidential friend on whom such injunction would not have been lost. Heming and Condell give us no intimation, in their Preface to the Folio of 1623, from what source they had received "true original copies", we are left to infer that they had gathered them up from the theatres owned by the company.

The author endeavors to trace a minute agreement between the chronological progress of Lord Bacon's literary, legal, and scientific studies and that of the successive dates of the plays called Shakspeare's, and to prove that, while the course of the latter's life and his occupation in other matters rendered it improbable that he was the real author, every indication goes to show that the probability is very strong that the former must have written the plays in question.

He thus compares the careers of the two men

In Francis Bacon we have a man three years older than William Shakspeare, and, when the latter came to London, already ten years from the University, and some four years an outer barrister of Gray's Inn, and well prepared, by the best possible advantages of an early education, finished classical scholarship, foreign travel, residence at royal courts, extraordinary natural gifts and learned acquisitions for commencing and prosecuting such a work, and in the situation of the briefless young barrister, in the midst of books, making slow progress in the profession, getting no advancement for a period of twenty five years after his coming to the bar beyond the unproductive honor of a queen's or king's counsel and a seat in Parliament, laboring under the two-fold embarrassment of an expensive mode of life and debt to the Lombards and Jews, casting about for "some lease of quick revenue" to relieve (as he says) "the meanness of my estate," enjoying the society of the theatre-going and masque-devising young courtiers, the dazzling favor of the court, the ample leisure of Gray's Inn, and occasionally the Arcadian quiet of Gorhambury and Twickenham Park, and in his known devotion to all manner of studies and the profoundest speculations, we may find the needful preparation, the time for writing and for study, and the means of growth and culture which the case requires And his acknowledged prose compositions of that period, to say nothing of the sonnets which he addressed to the Queen, or the masques which he wrote for her entertainment, exhibit all the necessary qualities of the poet He was "a poetic imaginator," says George Darley, "and dramatic poets are, (or ought to be,) philosophers." Even Macaulay admitted that "the poetical faculty was powerful in Bacon's mind, but not, like his wit, so powerful as occasionally to usurp the place of his reason"

As early as 1610, Shakspeare, having some time before ceased to play his part as an actor upon the stage, had retired from the theatres in London, and resumed his permanent residence in Stratford on-Avon. He is not known to have had any further connection with the stage. But in 1611 were produced the "Winter's Tale" and the "Tempest." The "Lear" was first performed before the King at Whitehall, in 1606, and the "Troilus and Cressida" in 1609; and the first notice that we have of the "Tempest" is, that it was performed before the King's Majesty at Whitehall, in November, 1611, and the "Winter's Tale," first acted at the Globe, in May, 1611, was performed before the King at Whitehall, a few days after the "Tempest." Both were repeated at Court during the festivities attending the nuptials of the Princess Elizabeth and the Elector Palatine, toward the close of the year 1612 and in the spring of 1613 And on the 30th day of June following, and while those festivities were still proceeding, as it appears, the magnificent play of "Henry VIII" was for the first time produced in great splendor at the Globe, with the presence (if not the assistance of Ben Johnson, (Shakspeare having retired from London), containing a studied and special compliment to King James. On the 27th of October thereafterward, Sir Francis Bacon, solicitor general, having some time before "come with his pitcher to Jacob's well, as others did," and obtained "the royal promise to succeed to the higher place, is raised to the laborious and lucrative position of Attorney General, and the plays cease to appear. William Shakspeare continues a few years longer to enjoy the social comforts of New Place, prosecuting at leisure his agricultural pursuits and miscellaneous traffic, and dies in 1616, leaving a handsome estate and a will

He says further

Nevertheless, the plays have been understood and appreciated rather according to existing standards of judgment than according to all that was really in them In general, our English minds seem to have been aware that their poet was more or less philosophical, or rather that he was a kind of universal genius, but that he was a Platonic thinker, a transcendental physician and philosopher, an idealist and a realist all in one, not many seem to have discovered Coleridge certainly had some inkling of this fact, and to Carlyle it stood perfectly clear that Shakspeare "does not look at a thing but into it, through it, so that he constructively comprehends it, can take it asunder, and put it together again, the thing melts as it were, into light under his eye, and anew creates itself before him That is to say, he is a thinker in the highest of all senses—he is a poet For Goethe, as for Shakspeare, the world all lies all translucent, all fusible we might call it, encircled with wonder, the natural in reality the supernatural for to the seer's eye both become one." And so also Gervinus concludes upon the question of "the realistic or ideal treatment," that "he is sometimes the one, sometimes the other, but in reality neither, because he is both at once" Deep searching criticism on this side of the sea has been able to sound the depths and scale the heights of the higher philosophy of Bacon, and it is almost equally clear that it has discovered in it the world streaming providence of Shakspeare. "The English shrink from a generalization," says Emerson 'They do not look abroad into universality, or they draw only a bucketfull at the fountain of the First Philosophy for their occasion, and do not go to the spring head Bacon, who said this, is almost unique among his countrymen in that faculty, at least among the prose writers Milton who was the stair or high table land to let down the English genius from the summits of Shakspeare, used this privilege sometimes in poetry more rarely in prose For a long interval afterward it is not found We know how Bacon attained to these heights but it is not explained how the unlearned William Shakspeare reached these same "summits of all philosophy otherwise than by a suggestion of the "specific gravity" of inborn genius Have we any evidence outside of these plays that this 'dry light' of nature was greater in William Shakspeare than in Francis Bacon? In Bacon, as in the plays, we have not only the inborn genius, but a life of study, knowledge science philosophy, art, and the wealth of learning Are these things to be counted as nothing? Then we may as well abolish the universities, burn the libraries and shut up the schools as of no use

> Hang up philosophy
> Unless philosophy can make a Juliet,
> Displant a town reverse a prince's doom
> It helps not, it prevails not, talk no more
> —Romeo and Juliet, Act III, Sec 3

For the most part, all that has been seen in Shakspeare has been considered as the product of some kind of natural genius or spontaneous inspiration The reason has been nearly this that since Bacon, if Berkley be excepted, England or the English language has never had a philosophy at all We have had nothing but a few sciences and a theology

A DOMESTIC STORY —About fifteen years ago, a saddler, whom we will call Smith, lived with his family in the First Ward of this city. By thrift and industry he had succeeded in laying by some money—sufficient to buy a small home in the West. Accordingly, the husband and father took his money in good solid cash and set out for Ohio, leaving his wife and children behind to wait till he made his selection and sent for them to come to him

The family waited for tidings, but none came They wrote repeatedly and made many inquiries, but no trace of the missing man could be obtained At last they gave up all hope of ever hearing of him again, and counted him dead There could be no doubt that the unfortunate traveler had been murdered for the money he carried with him Suspicion even fixed upon a resident of the city who had been in the same section of the country with the supposed deceased Meantime the family were poor, and had to live as they could. The wife of the absentee—the bereaved widow—opened a boarding house, and so earned an honest livelihood for herself and family. Two of the daughters married, and one of them, Ruth, was left a widow, and returned to live with her mother

Recently a young man from Baltimore came to board with Mrs Smith He was a soldier, and had found employment in the city A few days ago, at the table, he enquired of Mrs Smith if she had any relatives in Baltimore She had none He had learned his trade, he said, with a Robert Smith in that city, who was a saddler, and had come to Baltimore twelve or fourteen years ago. He proceeded to describe his former "boss," and he described the supposed dead man The accuracy of the description, the similarity of the name and occupation raised great speculation At last the widowed daughter, Ruth, obtained the address of the Baltimore saddler and started to visit him, and at once recognized him as the father who had disappeared so many years ago She accosted him and at once made herself known to him He was taken aback, and in his confusion received his daughter as his daughter should be received, acknowledging his relationship and confessing his great fault in leaving those belonging to him to struggle through so many years unaided by him.

He had lost all his money in Ohio, and was then ashamed to come home He earned more, but he had then been absent so long that he determined to return no more He kept his resolution, and keeps it yet He sent home presents and affectionate messages to one and all, but would not return to them —Pittsburgh Gazette

"Are you a moderate drinker?" said the Judge.

"I am."

"How long have you drank in moderation?"

"Forty years"

"And were ever intoxicated?"

"Never"

"Well," said the Judge, scanning his subject closely from head to foot, "your's is a singular case, yet it is easily accounted for. I am reminded by it of a little story A colored man with a loaf of bread and a flask of whisky, sat down to dine by the bank of a clear stream. In breaking bread some of the crumbs dropped into the water These were eagerly seized and eaten by the fish That circumstance suggested to the darky the idea of dipping the bread in the whisky and feeding it to them. He tried it. It worked well Some of the fish ate it, became drunk, and floated helpless on the water In this way he caught a great number But in the stream was a large fish unlike the rest. It partook freely of the bread and whisky, but with no perceptible effect. It was shy of every effort of the darkey to take it He resolved to have it at all hazards, that he might learn its name and nature He procured a net, and after much effort, caught it, carried it to a colored neighbor, and asked his opinion of the matter The other surveyed the wonder a moment and then said . 'Sambo, I understands dis case. Dat fish is a mullet-head, it hasn't got any brains!' In other words," added the Judge, "alcohol effects only the brains, and of course, those having none may drink without injury"

The storm of laughter that followed drove the moderate drinker suddenly from the house

REMARKABLE HAIL STORM —A correspondent of the Charlotte, N C., Democrat, writing from Davidson College, North Carolina says

The following is a description of a very novel and destructive hail storm which occurred at half past two o'clock yesterday afternoon. The pieces (not-stones) were of every conceivable shape, with horns, arms, legs, &c, resembling bugs, fowls, grasshoppers, crawfish, alligators, crabs, fish, lizards, chesnut burs, monkeys, sea shells, doll babies. &c They came down so rapidly, and in such size and quantity, that many of them lost an arm, leg, or wing in the fall. The little (not very) creatures came down with legs and arms spread out so that they hitched upon the cotton and other things, stripping them pretty clean of leaves and limbs. Some cotton fields are ruined The heaviest part of the storm was between here and Mount Mourne, covering the ground from three to four inches in some places, and to day it lies in piles two inches deep, the pieces averaging two and a half to three ounces in weight.

THE ROSE—The trade in roses, as is well known, is of considerable importance in France Rose trees are cultivated in different parts of the country in open fields, just as turnips or cabbages Thus, there are 500,000 rose trees near Orleans, 200,000 near Metz, 1,000,000 near Angers, 1,500,000 near Lyons, 2,000,000 near Paris, and 2,000,000 in the thirteen communes of Du Comte-Robert. The varieties called Rose The, the Bourbon, and Mousseuse flourish particularly in the environs of Paris and Orleans These flowers are raised for distillation into extracts, used in perfumery as rose water and as a constituent of Eau de Cologne The ottar of rose is manufactured mainly in the East, and is exceedingly valuable The city of Damascus is almost environed with rose gardens

TERRIBLE ACCIDENT —The Los Angeles (Cal) News of a late date says

A thoughtless young mother of fifteen years named Martina, living in the southern part of the city, on Sunday last placed her infant child, six months old, on the back of a colt without bridle or halter, and tied the legs of the infant under the belly of the colt so that it could not fall off, and letting go the colt, it took fright and ran off with the infant tearing its flesh and breaking its bones until life was extinct, and nothing remained of the poor child but a shapeless mass of flesh

This is to certify that I was blind for over four months and almost blind for one year and a half, I tried several eye doctors but received no benefit. I had almost given my case up as hopeless when fortunately I heard of Dr G W Brown, now of Salem I was induced to try him , he performed a surgical operation on my eyes, and gave me treatment I soon began to recover, and in a short time I was perfectly cured I do this in justice to one who rescued me from a fate worse than death, and also for the benefit of those who are laboring under similar afflictions that they may know where they can get relief It is now about eight months since my eyes were cured and they still remain good I can see to read the finest print without difficulty, and my eyes can bear the strongest light without pain

RULES AND REGULATIONS FOR THE PAYMENT OF BOUNTIES, UNDER THE ACT TO EQUALIZE BOUNTIES, APPROVED JULY 28, 1866

WAR DEPARTMENT, ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE,
WASHINGTON, September 10, 1866

1 All applications shall be filed within the period of six months, from the 1st day of October, 1866, and before any payments are made shall be classified by regiments, batteries or other separate organizations, and no application filed after that period shall be settled until after the former shall have been paid.

2 No application shall be entertained unless accompanied by the original discharge of the soldier and the affidavit required by the fourteenth section of the Act, and the further affidavit that he has not received, nor is he entitled to receive from the United States, under any laws or regulations prior to the Act of July 28, 1866, more than $100 bounty for any and all military service rendered by him during the late rebellion, over and above the amount therein claimed

3 All applications for the additional bounty authorized by this Act from surviving soldiers shall be in the form hereinafter prescribed, and the evidence of identity shall be the same as is now required, and applications from the heirs of deceased soldiers shall be in the form now required by the Treasury Department.

4 As soon as the examination of the claims of any regiment, or other independent organization, shall have been properly acted upon the Paymaster General shall take the necessary steps for their prompt payment

6. A register shall be kept in the Paymaster General's office and also in the office of the Second Auditor, of all claims presented under the law, in which the claimants will be classified by regiments, etc If the claims be allowed, the amount of bounty paid to each will be noted, and if rejected the cause of rejection will be distinctly stated

6 In the applications for bounty, as required by the third of these rules, the affidavit shall state each and every period of service rendered by the claimant, and also that he never served otherwise than as herein stated

7 Organizations irregularly in the service of the United States, or called out for special purposes as State Militia, Home Guards etc and not included in the general bounty laws, are not included within the meaning of the Act

8 Soldiers enlisted for "three years or during the war," who were discharged by reason of the termination of the war, shall be considered as having served out the period of their enlistment, and are entitled to bounty under this Act

9 The minority of heirs, claimants for bounty under this Act, must be proven to have existed at the date of its passage Parents shall receive jointly the bounty to which they may be entitled as heirs, unless the father has abandoned the support of his family in which case it shall be paid to the mother Non residence in the United States shall not be a bar to the claim of heirs, who would otherwise legally inherit.

The provisions of the Act exclude from its benefits the following classes

1 Those who, after serving the full period of their enlistment, were dishonorably discharged at its expiration

2 Those discharged during enlistment by way of favor or punishment

3. Those discharged on account of disability contracted in the service, but not occasioned by wounds received "in the line of duty," who shall not have previously served two or three years respectively at the time of discharge

4. Those discharged on account of disability existing at the time of their enlistment

5. The heirs of those who have died since their discharge of wounds or disease not contracted in the service and in the line of duty

6. The surviving soldiers and heirs of deceased soldiers who, under previous laws have received or are entitled to receive a bounty of more than $100 from the United States

7 The surviving soldiers, as well as the heirs of deceased soldiers, when such soldiers have bartered sold, assigned, loaned, transferred, exchanged or given away their final discharge papers, or any interest in the bounty provided by this or any other Act of Congress.

8 The Act of the 28th of July 1866, creates no right of inheritance beyond those vested by the law under which these heirs received or were entitled to receive the original bounty, and debars certain classes, brothers and sisters of heirs that were entitled to receive the original bounty from any claim for the additional bounty provided by this Act

Suit in Equity

To Henry Hyde In the name of the State of Oregon you are hereby required to appear and answer the complaint filed against you and others in the above entitled suit and if you fail to answer the same by the first day of the term of said Court which shall be held next after the expiration of six weeks from the first publication of this summons to-wit, the second Monday in February 1867 a decree will be taken against you for want of an answer, and the plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief demanded in said complaint, which as against you consists in your executing to the plaintiff a good and sufficient deed of, and being excluded from any right or claim to lots 3 and 4 in block 55 in the city of Portland in said county

W W CHAPMAN,
Portland, Nov 23, 1866.—29-6w Att'y for Pl'ff.

Notice

IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT THE COMMON COUNCIL of the City of Portland propose to improve that part of Alder street, lying between the west line of Front street and the east line of Second street, except that portion occupied by First street, by grading and paving with broken stone and fine gravel, in manner similar to the late improvement on Madison street. The broken stone and gravel to be put on, each an average depth of six inches, and by constructing sidewalks and crosswalks in manner similar and of like material as those constructed on Madison street, Provided, that in any portion of said street where gravel heretofore placed is found to be sufficient, the same will be used as a foundation for the fine gravel instead of broken stone
